TODAY'S DOORS EMBODY THE PERFECT SYNTHESIS OF AESTHETICS AND SECURITY

BY ARUNA RATHOD

The first impression is the lasting impression—and when it comes to doors making a style statement, the onus of making the right impression is on the entrance door. The entrance door lends a charm and character to a home and set the tone for its decor and design. Even as Indian architects and designers are scouting for doors that make a lasting impression, the country's leading manufacturers are going the extra mile in fusing fine aesthetics with conventional features to create cutting-edge door solutions for the discerning buyers. The result is a refreshing new range of doors— from the vintage wooden and high-end French doors, to new-age metal and composite versions.

MATERIAL WORLD

When it comes to doors, the styles and designs may change from time to time, but the preferred material for doors continues to be wood. Be it frames, panels or flush doors, wood is the most popular because of its elegant look, durability and strength. Having said that, thanks to the application of composites and metals, doors are now available in a variety of materials, including fibreglass, aluminium, steel, UPVC, glass, wood-panels and laminations.

For a minimalist design, flush doors are the best option for homes. With simple finishes that are smooth, one can have a core material to project the feeling of solid wood doors at a cost that is significantly lower than the conventional wooden doors. Moreover, with space being a constraint in many homes, rooms with sliding textured wooden doors with plain-painted walls in whites, creams or beige are an emerging trend. Not only are the sliding doors ideal for saving space, they also draw attention to the wall they are installed on and the light colors make the room appear more spacious.

All-wooden doors, that can be used even in places where they are exposed to moderate or harsh weather conditions, are also becoming increasingly popular. "At Greenlane, our Mikasa range is a complete package for customized door solutions. The doors, frames and accessories are shipped from the factory as a fully-furnished single door-set," says Pavan Mittal, director, Greenlane Industries, adding that customisation is the big plus factor when it comes to doors, be it size, thickness or colour of the doors. These modern door-set are as durable as they are aesthetically appealing. The smooth laminate surface of the door-set also makes it easy to clean and maintain. Besides, the doors are available in veneer and paint surfaces which require minimal effort to clean and are practically maintenance-free.

A new generation of metal doors with superior finish and aesthetic features are finding increased traction. For instance, the sliding/folding door is one of the most versatile and popular types of door, perfect for every appeal, be it contemporary or traditional. The application of these doors can be both exterior and interior. As the name suggests, the sliding/folding doors that fold outside as well as inside come with large glass panes which are perfect for views of gardens, landscapes and panoramas. "They have wide openings that allow maximum natural light and air into the house," says Atish Thacker, marketing director, Geeta Aluminium, a company that specialises in marketing, distribution and fabrication of aluminum windows and doors. Bringing his 20 years of experience in the forestation industry and technical expertise in architectural aluminium and imported fabrication machines, Thacker is driving the innovation and sourcing at Geeta Aluminium to develop unique applications in aluminium. "The aluminium frame for sliding/folding doors is a convenient option since it is slim, durable and low maintenance. It is ideal for both residential and commercial (applications), with benefits that can be divided into strength, aesthetics and longevity," says Thacker, adding that aluminium not only lends a contemporary, modern look and feel, but is also an environment-friendly material since it is recyclable. Geeta Aluminium customises doors that reflect the colour and finish of one's choice.
